Title: Supporting Climate Change Innovation at Imperial College London

The Grantham Institute at Imperial College London has a dedicated programme to support climate change innovation. This programme, called Undaunted, is designed to connect strongly to our mission as a university – with opportunities to work with students, staff and alumni, and to connect scientific discovery with commercial potential for impact. Alyssa Gilbert, Director of Innovation at the Grantham Institute will provide an overview of this climate innovation work and looks forward to hearing perspectives on the potential for connecting this innovation work to similar work in India.

All are Welcome!
